'Daily' Banquet Is Tomorrow

New Board and Staff Awards To Be Announced

Tomorrow "Daily" reporters and staff join in a final fling after the session's activities. The peak event of the year, the annual banquet, is to take place at the Union, with its official commencement scheduled for 7.00 p.m. After partaking of refreshment of the customary nature in the "Daily" office, the party will ascend to the Cafeteria upstairs for a repast of more substantial nature. At the festive board itself, the present managing board is to announce the names of those who are to take over their positions next year. Speeches, toasts and the presentation of awards to members of the staff are planned to follow. Amongst the guests invited are former officials and representatives of the city press, whilst the reporters who may attend the function are listed on page 4 of this issue.

Tirpitz on the Run

The Nazi giant battleship Tirpitz was attacked by British torpedo planes in the North Sea. Details of the engagement are scanty, but it is hinted that extensive naval operations are going on off the Norwegian coast. The attack was made when the battleship steamed out to attack a large Russia-bound convoy.

Japs on the Move

The Japanese forces, despite the losses inflicted upon them by the Allied forces, are proceeding steadily toward Australia. The first attack upon Australian territory was made in New Guinea, near which island the enemy have lost seven ships.

Cripps on the Way to India

Sir Stafford Cripps has been sent to India to sound out the practicability of the British Government's plan for Dominion status in India.

Roosevelt on the War

President Roosevelt renewed in a speech yesterday his intention of carrying the war to the Axis.

Med-Plumbers' Ball Will Feature Cabaret Floorshow

Although the Med-Plumbers Ball is an annual event, there will be nothing ordinary about this dance tonight. The big event of the evening is a floorshow. The executive is unable to disclose the names of most of the artists but assures us the entertainers are all imported and exceptionally talented. One of the highlights of the show will be a performance by the Kadoodlers, who are famous for their radio programs. Another feature will be a series of imitations by a well-known comedian. The floorshow will be presented in two acts and will probably come on about a quarter to twelve in an orchestra intermission. A group of Architectural Undergraduates is in charge of the decorations, and although the executive refuses to disclose the nature of the decorations it promises they will be completely novel.

As previously announced, music will be supplied from 9.30 till 2.30 by Mart Kenney and his Western Gentlemen with Judy Richards as featured soloist. This orchestra is deservedly famous for its excellent music and original arrangements; and has been brought down from Toronto especially for this occasion.

Reservations have been made for the supper tables. Eight couples will sit at each table. All reservations for the tables were filled by noon yesterday.

Pre-Meds to Hear Savant

Nominations to Be Proposed at Next General Meeting

The Pre-Medical Society will hold its meeting today at 5.00 p.m. in the Union Music Room. Dr. Andre J. Richard, a French Roentgenologist, will give an informal talk on his experiences in the Medical Service of the French Army during the first World War and during the present war until he was able, a few months ago, to leave the occupied region of France and come to Canada.

Dr. Richard has been an assistant of Madame Curie and has worked with the most celebrated pioneers in the roentgenology in France and the U.S.A. He has travelled widely in North and South America where he has been, for several years, professor of roentgenology. At the time of the invasion of France in June, 1940, he was doing research work in X-ray laboratories of Paris. His private laboratory and his home, near Paris, were destroyed by bombs.

He is at present collaborating with the roentgenological work at the Hotel Dieu Hospital of Montreal.

S.C.M. to Hear Dr. G. Vlastos

Arrangements For Spring Camp Are Being Made

Dr. Gregory Vlastos will speak at the S.C.M. chapel service in Divinity Hall on Sunday evening, and afterwards will lead a discussion during the ensuing "Open House" at the new S.C.M. headquarters at 3574 University St.

Dr. Vlastos was born in Greece and educated at Constantinople, and is at the present time a Professor of Philosophy at Queen's University. He is achieving some note as an author, having recently written "Christian faith and Democracy" and "Towards a Christian Revolution," and is on the editorial board of "The Protestant." On Saturday evening and Sunday afternoon Dr. Vlastos will address several other Christian groups in the city. ## Thomson, MacIntosh, Farmer, Cross And Pitcairn Are Elected to Various Posts in Men's and Women's Unions

Debating Union Elections To Be in Grill Room Today

The Debating Union Society is calling a general meeting of its members, at 5.15 this afternoon in the Union Grill Room, for the election of a new president for the coming year.

A member of the executive pointed out last night that all members of the Students' Society are automatically members of the Debating Union, and the fact that they do not take an active part in debates should not prevent them from being present.

The nominees for the post of president are Donald Delvin, and H. Norman Hillyer. The vote will be by secret ballot. All other offices of the executive have already been filled by acclamation: Stewart Bross, Vice-President; Margaret Millen, Secretary; Mervyn Weiner, Junior Treasurer.

Club Hears Dr. Fulton

Philosophers Hold Last Meeting

In a paper on "The So-Called Scientific Attitude" presented at the final meeting of the Philosophical Society last night, Professor J. S. Fulton of the Philosophy Department criticized a belief about the scientific attitude, a belief currently held by intelligent and vocal groups in philosophy and science. Science, Dr. Fulton said in outlining the more technical formulation of the belief in question, has in its practical application "remade the world more nearly to the heart's—or at least the stomach's desire. In addition to the material conditions of life," he added, "science, it is said, has changed the social, institutional and cultural conditions, and through these has changed man himself."

The belief under discussion, the speaker said, holds that by extending science to the human and social world, man can master fate by making it a matter of choice obedient to his will. The scientific attitude, in the view outlined, is "the power of light in a world of darkness."

Professor Fulton found fault with this belief on the grounds that strictly interpreted the scientific attitude is not the power of light and that the power of light is more than (Continued on Page Four)

Dance Club to Give Concert

Group Announces Function; Gate Goes to War Fund

The Junior and Senior Dance Club will give a concert on Friday, March 20th. Scheduled to begin at 8.30, the concert will take place in the upper hall at R.V.C.

Proceeds of the affair will go to the Students' War Fund, the Club has announced. General admission charge will be fifty cents. The concert will consist of three groups; dance movements and technicalities, with explanations of their movements, a group of dance studies; and a group of dance compositions. The dance compositions will be: "Go Down Moses," a study of the qualities of the spirituals, mood and contrast to symbolize the rebellions

About 71% of Students Vote; Law Faculty Leads with 99%

Approximately 71% of the Student Body at McGill went to the polls yesterday with the result that R. Stewart Willis was elected President of the Students' Society for the forthcoming year. On the men's side W. Munroe, A. Thomson, R. MacIntosh, and A. Farmer were chosen for office, while those elected to represent the women were Ruth Hill, M. Cross, and Barbara Pitcairn. The following are all of those who were elected:

Students' Society
President Stewart Willis
McGill Union
President William Munroe
Vice-President Allan Thomson
Secretary Robert MacIntosh
Women's Union
President Ruth Hill
Secretary Marjorie Cross
Athletic Board
Representative Alan Farmer
M.W.S.A.A.
President Barbara Pitcairn
Willis was chosen over four other candidates: Cripps, Henderson, MacDonald and Starkey. He will become President of the Students' Society, and Chairman of the Students' Council, in which positions he will succeed Glenn Cowan, the present incumbent.

Men's and Women's Union
William Munroe and Allan Thomson defeated Charles Harris and Gordon Greaves for the Presidency and Vice-Presidency of the McGill Union. In the contest for the Secretaryship Robert MacIntosh was successful, the other candidates being David Armstrong and Peter Hall.

In the Women's Union Ruth Hill was chosen president over Karlene Norton and Stephanie Zuperko, and the voting for the Secretaryship placed Marjorie Cross in that post, with Joan Waterson the unsuccessful candidate.

The position of Men's Athletic Representative was accorded to Alan Farmer at the expense of Robert Watt, and Barbara Pitcairn was chosen over Barbara Mercer as President of the M.W.S.A.A.

Percentage Statistics
The percentage of voting this year was in general heavier than last year. This time 71.2 per cent. voted, while in the last elections for these prominent campus positions, only 59.8 exercised their franchise. This increase of 10 per cent is collateral with a twenty-five per cent. increase in the number of candidates. As in former years, the Law Faculty turned out the largest proportional vote. In comparison to 94.3 per cent. last year, the lawyers showed 99 per cent. this year, one person not voting.

Theology was second on the list with a showing of 90.9 per cent. of its students going to the polls. R.V.C. was third with a percentage of 78.3, while the combined Faculties of Engineering and Architecture at 75.5 per cent. were closely followed by Medicine at 74.5. Commerce placed at 71.6 per cent.

Under the two-thirds mark were the Faculty of Dentistry with a percentage of 64.8, the Faculty of Arts at 62.9 per cent. and Music with 9.9 out of every hundred students voting. The men as a whole showed about 69 per cent. The present incumbents of the (Continued on Page Four)

After Elections, What?

The election is over. Nothing remains to be said, except a few words to those who may not have realized that the important thing in an election is not who is elected, but the work that will be done under him.

All of the candidates have stressed the war effort in their platforms, the difference being in their approach to the problem. Little more can be done this year, but next year, let everyone, no matter for whom he voted or who he supported, add his bit to the work that will be done.

Time is too short for bickering; let's forget the post-mortems and get down to business, this year and the year to come. We'd like to congratulate the successful candidates and also—may we be pardoned for this presumption—remind them that the whole student body wants them to live up to expectations.

A Reasonable Request

This year's executive of the Women's Union have recently taken a step which will, they hope, make history. We refer to their request to the Warden of R.V.C. that in the future the president of the Women's Union be permitted to live in R.V.C.

In making this request the executive outlined their reasons for it. 1. The nature of the President's duties demands her presence at countless meetings and University affairs at all hours of the night and day. Meals at irregular hours and arrival home late at night (on an average of three nights a week) after meetings or other business take a heavy toll on the student's health. Without a central "pied-de-terre" (which need the room in R.V.C. would fill), the position of the President may be compared with Mohomet's coffin—slung half way between heaven and earth.

2. Living quarters in R.V.C. would make for greater efficiency of the President. She would be on hand for any last minute calls, and her co-operation with the Daily would be considerably facilitated.

3. The past has shown that the President is required to spend an average of ten to fifteen hours a week on business pertaining to her position. Residence in R.V.C. would save the President many valuable hours, otherwise spent in commuting. It would tend to lighten an already overburdened schedule and permit her to spend more time on her studies.

In the event that a room in R.V.C. is accorded the President, the executive has proposed the following financial scheme: the Women's Union will pay the regular fee for a room, $175.00, and an additional $25.00 towards the President's meals. The balance of the President's meals will come out of her own pocket. This scheme is similar to the basis on which officers of the Students' Society live in the McGill Union.

The executive has pointed out that in the past one of the objects of the Women's Union was "to aim at the establishment of a building, termed The Women's Union to be used for the above objects" (Article 2b. of the Constitution). In 1939 this object was struck out and the rather nebulous one "to aim at the establishment of a fund to be used for the furthering of the above objects" was inserted. This year's executive feel that the Women's Union will never be in a position to stand the heavy financial burden of maintaining, let alone constructing, a Women's Union building. Moreover, they feel that the facilities that such a building would provide are already all enjoyed in R.V.C. (Such as the office of their organization and the Common Room for members)—EXCEPT residence for the President. Therefore they feel justified in diverting $200 out of the surplus now being laid aside yearly towards a room in R.V.C. for the President.

The proposal now rests in the lap of the gods.

Music Reviews

Last Tuesday's Concert Symphonique combined a popular program, which was very well played, with a soloist of unparalleled musicianship and appeal. The performance served to confirm the enviable reputations Arthur Rubenstein and Desire Defauw have earned, and to enhance the reputation that the orchestra of Les Concerts Symphoniques is earning.

The feature of the evening—at least so far as the audience was concerned—was M. Rubenstein's brilliant performance of Tchaikowski's B-flat minor piano concerto. Piano playing of this calibre is seldom heard in Montreal, and those who were fortunate enough to be present at the concert made the most of it. Rubenstein leaves one with the impression that he is completely master of his instrument; the tone is clear, the phrasing precise, and nuances, however delicate, are shown to a nicety. And he is just as much a master of interpretation as he is of technicalities. The concerto seemed to assume a new value when he played it; it lost its air of banality and appeared as really fine music. The response to M. Rubenstein's performance was so overwhelming that he played three encores, two pieces by Chopin and Stravinski's "Petrouchka."

In accompanying the concerto, M. Defauw and the orchestra did yeoman service. A great portion of the orchestral work is very difficult, and M. Rubenstein showed his appreciation of their efforts by insisting that they share the applause.

In point of fact, the orchestra's work throughout the concert was extremely good. The first number, Mendelssohn's "Fingal's Cave" overture, was played with restraint and delicacy, conveying all the shades the composer intended.

Haydn's "London" symphony was given a very satisfying performance. It is very hard for an orchestra to play Haydn properly, since the heart of his music rests in its simplicity and freedom from affectation. Modern orchestras, used to the complexities of modern music, are apt to forget themselves when playing Haydn, but M. Defauw and the orchestra showed no signs of making this mistake. The straightforward harmony, the lilting melody and the simple rhythmic patterns were brought out to very good advantage.

The orchestra was at its best in the Prelude to the 1st Act of "Lohengrin," by Wagner. The strings, the woodwind and the brass each had their work to do, and it was very well done. A newcomer to the ranks of concert pieces was "The Redemption," a symphonic excerpt by Cesar Franck. This number, like so many of Franck's religious works, suggests that he is writing for a huge organ. It begins with the basses, in deepest diapason; then violins as a vox humana, state the melody; and finally the brass, used in Franck's daring manner, combine with the rest in a stirring canon finale.

Social Work

One year has passed—the social work student has completed her first year of post-graduate training in family case work. She has learned the fundamentals and now looks about to see what specialized fields are available.

In the child-welfare field there are such varied branches as foster home placement for dependent or neglected children, Juvenile Court probation work, supervising the progress of maladjusted children and rehabilitation of delinquents in reform schools.

The psychiatric field offers opportunity to work in conjunction with the psychiatrist in the readjustment of those who, unable to cope with real-life situations, retreat into the world of phantasy.

Work with unmarried mothers appeals to those who believe that society has adopted an unfair moralistic attitude toward those who for financial reasons have been unable to keep their problem hidden from the prying public. As workers in this field co-operate more with group workers, probation officers and all those interested in building up a healthy attitude in youth, and as the public becomes more aware of the needs of youth, the problem of unmarried motherhood will rapidly wane.

For those with an administrative turn of mind, there is training in the Council of Social Agencies, where first-hand experience of the integration of the work of a large group of agencies may be gained in order to maintain standards and to keep a finger on the pulse of the public's actual needs and desires.

This year for the first time in Canada a course in medical social work, approved by the American Association of Medical Social Workers is available at the Montreal School of Social Work. This prepares the student for work in a hospital, as part of the hospital staff. She may work with children whose ailment, whether it be arthritis or heart disease, plays a great part in the development of personality. The many emotional and familiar problems which tuberculosis brings opens yet another area. The rehabilitation of the handicapped, the assistance to families in the care of terminal cancer patients, collaboration in treatment in psychiatric clinics—all these provide stimulating experiences for the person whose interests lie in scientific directions.

It is difficult to present briefly a broad picture of the field of social work without slurring over many interesting features, and we would welcome any questions for supplementary information. We will attempt to answer them in the next article, when we will outline the possibilities for the graduate social worker who is willing to spend thought, time and energy in a work which gives much opportunity for individual initiative.

Adolphe Menjou On French Network:

Late last Wednesday afternoon, Adolphe Menjou came to Montreal from New York, a couple of hours later he was rehearsing for the Thursday night production of Radio Theatre Lux Français. We interviewed him in between scenes of "Arsene Lupin," a play of the "roman policier" type, in which he played the leading role of the Duc de Charmerasse who, as far as we could gather, was the master-thief, Arsene Lupin himself.

Monsieur Menjou looked quite ruddy and remarkably tall, although this impression may have been caused by his easy and erect bearing and the clean fit of his well-tailored tweed suit. As he read his lines in his soft French, he kept his left hand tucked behind his back, underneath his coat, giving him an air of complete assurance.

Monsieur Menjou, a free-lance actor, has just finished two pictures: "Roxy Hart" with Ginger Rogers, and "Syncopation" with Jackie Cooper, which is to come out this April. The French star told us about the 350-odd Hollywood actors and actresses who do radio broadcasts and lectures for the Allied cause. He himself occasionally goes on the short-wave to France.

Radio Theatre Français is a Lux-sponsored program, a parallel of the American Monday night show. The directors' policy is to bring one famous French actor or actress, to take the lead in the cast. They feature every type of French play, ranging from the classical to the contemporary works. There are quite a number of people whom the sponsors hope to feature on their program in coming months, but since none have been definitely contracted, we cannot mention names. Monsieur Menjou provided an auspicious beginning for what should prove among our French-Canadian friends a really popular series of programs.

"Alert"

William J. Dunn, CBS correspondent "somewhere in Java" was awakened one morning recently by an "alert" and had his first face to face glimpse of the enemy. Dunn went downstairs to see what was happening and found three other correspondents eating a leisurely breakfast. As he pulled out a chair to join them he glanced out a window and saw six enemy planes heading directly for them at a low altitude, Machine-gun fire soon followed. Two of the correspondents jumped out a window into a dugout. Dunn took shelter behind a wall. It was all over in a few moments and Dunn, with trepidation, went back to see what had happened to the fourth correspondent. He found him busily making the rounds of the deserted breakfast tables, helping himself to the choicer bits of food.

Sidelights of The Victory Loan Program:

The Victory Loan series of broadcasts, which has just concluded was one of the finest of radio series produced in Canada. The producer of the all-star shows, Rupert Caplan is back in Montreal and told us a few interesting sidelights about these shows.

Working with people of the cinema and legitimate stage, who had established themselves in their respective fields was an interesting experience although at times a harrowing one, said Mr. Caplan. Since most of the stars had personal appearances during the day, the gruelling rehearsals and broadcast before an audience of over 3,000 was an impressive effort, especially since the stars had donated their services.

Mr. Caplan mentioned Adolphe Menjou in particular. When air time came, Mr. Menjou, who had appeared in Montreal the night before and had made several speeches for the war effort at factories in and around Toronto, was suffering from a bad laryngitis. He acted in Mr. Pip by Arch Oboler and received a tremendous ovation for his trouping.

The show that featured Greer Garson went two minutes overtime because Eric Knight spent a little more time reading his speech than had been anticipated. It so happened that Mr. Knight appeared on the program by accident. The CBC found out that Mr. Knight was in Toronto and they decided to put him on the air at the last minute. He wrote the speech on the train from Toronto to Ottawa and he went on the air with hardly any rehearsal.

Fade Out:

As we fade out with our last column of the year, we should like to thank those of you who took the trouble to comment on various aspects of Static. Some thought that it was original in spots, others thought that it was too much about nothing and still others did not even attempt to read it. In deference to these people, who were frightened away by the length of former columns, we have made our last opus short.

But we cannot leave without telling one more of the humorous fluffs of the tribe of split-second men. It seems that a Blue Network announcer was excited before his show went on the air, so when the cue light came to him from the control room, he blurted out this magnificent epic:

Radio's Own Show, BEHIND THE MUCK!

Publishers' Notes

Modern Library

Seven years after its original publication date, an 1,100-page novel has catapulted into the national best-seller lists. Tolstoy's "War and Peace" is the book, and the explanation for its sudden popularity is that its graphic descriptions of Napoleon's 1812 retreat from Moscow parallel with uncanny detail the recent and continuing withdrawals of Hitler's Nazi armies.

"War and Peace" is title number one on the list of Modern Library Classics. This edition reprints the Constance Garnett translation complete and unabridged, in one volume. Since it was first printed in 1932, it has sold over 130,000 copies, 20,000 of which were marketed in the past three months. One New York department store placed a single order for 1,000 copies the day after Clifton Fadiman, abandoning new books for the moment, devoted his entire weekly article in the New Yorker Magazine to Tolstoy's classic. A new printing of 25,000 copies is now on the presses—the largest single printing of one title in the twenty-four years of the Modern Library's history.

The Modern Library adds six varied and interesting titles to its list this Spring, raising its total to 223. Stephen Crane's superb Civil War tale, "The Red Badge of Courage," Sinclair Lewis' "Babbitt," and Richard Wright's recent Book-of-the-Month Club choice, "Native Son," are the novels added to the series. An intriguing new volume offers Lillian Hellman's four plays, "The Children's Hour," "Days to Come," "The Little Foxes," and "Watch on the Rhine," with an introduction by the author. Eight years ago Miss Hellman was an unknown young playwright. Today her collected works rate inclusion in the most carefully chosen reprint series in America! Side by side with these titles is a 773-page volume offering the complete works of Tacitus, in the Church and Brodribb translation, edited by Moses Hadas of Columbia.

The Humanities Course at the University adopted this volume as an official text on the day it was announced for publication. The sixth new Modern Library title is the well-known Charles Ward edition of "The Oracles of Nostradamus," frankly offered by the editors with their tongues in their cheeks. "Do we consider Nostradamus literature?" explained Donald Klopfer in response to some good-natured ribbing by Ralph Thompson of the New York Times. "Great Jehosaphat, No! But—thousands of people seem to be deriving an unholy amount of comfort from interpreting the old seer's mouthings to suit their own hopes and aspirations—and we saw no harm in bestowing the Modern Library accolade upon him. If our public disapproves, we'll send Nostradamus, packing come Michaelmas."

Mr. Klopfer then departed to find out just when Michaelmas came.

In addition to six new titles in the regular series, Spring will mark the addition of the fifty-ninth and sixtieth volumes in the "Giant" series. The new titles are "The Life and Writings of Abraham Lincoln," edited by Philip Van Doren Stern, and a collection of "Sixteen Famous Modern American Plays," edited by Bennett Cerf and Van Cartmell, with an introduction by Brooks Atkinson. The Lincoln volume is the greatest collection of his letters and messages ever collected into a single volume; it runs to 889 pages. The play anthology includes the complete texts of such outstanding successes as "Life with Father," "The Man Who Came to Dinner," "Our Town," "The Women," "Ah, Wilderness," and "The Green Pastures"—1,040 pages in all.

THESE CLEVER WOMEN

Close your eyes, my love, let me make you blind!
They have taught you to see
Only problems written on the face of things,
And algebra in the eyes of desirous men,
And God like geometry
Tangling his circles, to baffle you and me,
I would kiss you over the eyes till I kissed you blind;
If I could—if anyone could!
Then perhaps in the dark you'd find
The solution that ever is much to get what you want to find:
Deep for the mind:
Dissolved in the blood . . .
That I am the heart and you are the gentle hand.

TEAMS LACK SUPPORT.

The Editor,

McGill Daily.

Dear Sir,—A group of students, about 15 strong, attended the McGill-Navy hockey game a week ago Monday. We were practically the only college students present, and we certainly were the only ones to cheer our team.

Last Monday when Clarkson came up to play, the turn out was slightly better, but of those present, the only ones who lent any vocal support, were the same fifteen who had attended the previous game. All others remained passively in their seats, with bored looks on their faces. Indeed the men paid more attention to rubbernecking at the pretty girls, than to the game.

Why is this so? Is there no more college spirit left? Doesn't anybody have any more interest in McGill, otherwise than students? Certainly all the students are not overpreoccupied with their work, so overburdened as not to be able to support their team for at least one of its two sorties against the challengers.

It is sincerely hoped that future years will bring forth more support; even if the supporters aren't able to speak for a day or two after the games, the whole campus would probably be better off anyway! So, how about it gang? Next year, and every year, yell, cheer and give your teams everything you've got.

B. J. A.

STUDENT FOOLOSOPHY

Three Point Jive

This is the tale of a freshman lad who, which ain't good, has got it bad. And all on account of a vision seen. Of what ain't now but might have been.

By gad!
Our honest lad, at the start of school,
Laid down for himself this simple rule:
He'd try all year to persevere
And make a mark that folks would cheer.

(Also Dad.)
And as he began his college life
In a world at war, in an age of strife,
For a three-point-five he commenced to dig.
'Cause he wanted to make Phi Eta Sig.

(It's the fad.)
His roommate said, "It's rarely done!"
Our lad replied, "But I'm the one!"
To bolster his courage, a bet he made
Of twenty-five cents that he'd make the grade.

(He was mad.)
He managed to stay awake in class;
At the blond on his left he made no pass;
And every day he made it his bliz
To be prepared for a sudden quiz.
Some went to the Gayety, others to bed,
But he stayed at his studies, filling his head
With formula, theory, fact, equation.

Archaeology, French translation. (Egad!)
Of the fairer sex he would have none,
Forfeiting numerous hours of fun,
And he passed up many a feigning dance,
Preferring good marks to a good romance.
(The cad!)
At last arrived the final test,
That week which often floor the best;
He crammed each night 'til early morn;
To do his very best he'd sworn,
He had!
At last, exhausted in mind and limb,
He left for home to regain his vim,
But the only thought that filled his mind
Was the unknown mark he'd left behind.
Good or bad?
On Monday morn he hurried back,
Disdaining even a hasty snack.
Straight to the post office box he flew
And—there was his grade report in view.
Steady, lad!
With trembling hand he scanned the page;
Then the air exploded with howls of rage,
And they heard him exclaim, as he fell to the floor:
"I only made a three-point-FOUR!"
(So sad!)
Yet it wasn't the grade that gave him a jar,
Nor to be so near and yet so far;
It was losing the quarter that hurt, you see,
'Cause his middle name is spelled McGEE.
(A lad in plaid.)

F. Company Jumps into Lead in Track Meet

Cowan Bourne Star As Initial Round Completed

Spotlight on Sports by wyc

Former Breaks McGill Indoor 440 Yd. Record

A mere 17 competitors were on hand for the first round of the Intercompany Indoor Track meet held in the Sir Arthur Currie Memorial Gymnasium yesterday. Three events, however, were run off, with five freshmen of F. Coy. winning the majority of points. The final events will take place next Tuesday, March 17, instead of Wednesday, as previously announced.

Although the entry list was small, all 17 entered into the spirit of the day and took part in every event, and several heats had to be run off in both 440 and 50 yard dashes. The only sad note came when Sgt. Johnnie Winton of A. Coy. landed heavily in clearing the bar in the high jump and dislocated his elbow. The event was, therefore, postponed till next Tuesday.

COWAN BREAKS RECORD

Glenn Cowan, running for A Coy., won the feature race of the afternoon, the 440 yd. dash. Hard pressed by Larry Lundgren of Independents, Cowan broke the McGill Indoor record for the 440 in completing 3 laps around the gym in the fast time of 51.3 seconds. Lundgren was second, with Maurice Godine of F. Coy. third, and Winton (A) and Long (C) tied for fourth. Three heats had to be run off in this event, with each individual runner clocked for final position.

In the 50 yd. dash, Hilary Bourne, who hails from St. Philip in the British West Indies, outstripped by two yards the ten other entrants, in running with a time of 5.6 seconds. Lundgren of Independents again was second, while Cowan and Winton of A. Coy. placed third and fourth respectively. Bourne also won the 50 yd. event in the indoor meet last year.

The Medicine Ball Shot Put drew the most competitors, and resulted in a win by Max Popovitch of G. Company. He hoisted the leather-covered horsefeathers a distance of 44 feet 1 1/2 inches, but failed to crack the mark of 45 feet 5 1/2 inches set last year by Dods. Maurice Godine (F) was second with a heave of 42 feet and Lundgren (Ind.) and Long (C) third and fourth.

MEET FINISHES TUESDAY

Next Tuesday, the postponed high jump will take place as well as the 50 yd. low hurdles, the mile, the standing broad jump, and the big Intercompany Relay. In connection with this latter event, Coach Van Wagner stresses that a minimum of four men must turn out from each Company in order to enter. Each competitor will probably run one lap around the Gym.

Here are today's results:

FREE THROW CHAMPIONSHIPS

The finals of the basketball free throw championships will be held Friday, March 13th, 4 to 6 p.m. All who scored 10 baskets out of first 25 trials should report for final 25 throws.

Any men who have not taken first 25 throws may do so on Friday.

Gymnastic Club Elects Next Year's Executive

This coming Saturday, the McGill Gymnastic team plans to meet the Shawbridge Boys' Farm in an exhibition Gym meet at the Shawbridge Gym. The line-up has not yet been announced. The team also plans to put on an exhibition of Gymnastic Jerks at Macdonald College next Wednesday, March 18. Details of these matches will be announced later.

At a meeting of the Gymnastic Club last night, the following executive was elected for next year: Captain: John Foster; Manager: Guy Grimaldi; Assistant Manager: Bob Kovacs; Publicity Manager: Bill Woodhead; Honorary President: Hay Finlay; Honorary Coach: Ray Caron.

Skiers Meet Sunday at St. Sauveur

Downhill and Slalom Events To Be Held

This coming Sunday, March 15, the last Intercompany Ski Meet scheduled for this year will be held at St. Sauveur. The fine, sunny weather now in vogue will give a good opportunity for all skiers to turn out and take part.

There will only be two events on Sunday, as the cross country has been left off the program. The downhill will begin at 10.30 a.m. on the downhill run, and the second event, the slalom, will start on Hill 71 at 2.30 in the afternoon. All those intending to enter are urged to sign the lists posted in the various buildings as soon as possible.

RUNNING CLOSE

On the showings made in the first meet some weeks ago, it appears that only 4 teams are really in the running—those of F. Company, G. Company, the C.O.T.C. and the McGill Air Force. F. Company narrowly edged out G. Company by 9 points last time, mainly due to the efforts of Fitzpatrick and Fleming in leading all others in both the slalom and downhill events.

A novel feature of the meet will be the McGill Women's competition. (Continued on Page Four)

Qualified Free-Throw Artists to Compete

Navy Clinches Puck Title In Clash Against Marines

Crutchfield Ties Smith for League Scoring Lead

In one of the fastest and most cleanly played hockey games seen on Forum ice this year, the Navy squad of the Intramural loop clinched first place in the standings by subjecting the second place Marines to an 8-1 trouncing. The results of this game give the Navy 14 points and one more game to play, while the Marines have now completed their schedule with 11 points.

SCORING RACE

The highlight of this game was the duel for the league scoring crown between Bruce Crutchfield of the victors and Earl Smith of the Marines. As the game got under way, Smith was leading the pack with 23 points, while his rival was only in fifth place with 18. But before the game was over, Smith had picked up his squad's lone tally to bring his total to 24, while Crutchfield had gone on a scoring spree to pick up two goals and four assists to tie his rival. This game marked Smith's last appearance during the regular league schedule while his opponent has one more game to play.

For the first time this year both teams came out on the ice with full squads, and as a result, a fast pace was kept up throughout the entire game. Especially outstanding were the opposing goalies, MacEachern and Thompson, who time after time robbed their opponents of well-earned scores. The main difference between the two teams was the bang-up defence of Gagnon and Owen who checked every one and everything in sight.

The only penalty of the game came in the second period when Smith was sent off the ice for a minor infraction. The line of Patterson, Nicholson and Crutchfield, was particularly effective and had the opposing goalie not been brilliant, the final score would have been much higher.

TODAY'S GAME

At 12.30 today, the fourth place Artillery meet their fifth place rivals, the Infantry, in a contest which may see the former rise to second place in the standings. As things are now, the Infantry is definitely out of the play-offs, while their opponents are definitely in, regardless of the game's outcome. A win, however, will boost the Artillerymen all the way from fourth to second place, and it is certain that Grant Morrison's squad will go all out for victory.

Following are the line-ups of yesterday's game:

Navy—MacEachern, Crutchfield, Owen, Hale, Deuch, Gibson, Grant, Kennedy, Covo, Ivey, Patterson, Millon, Cowan, Pye, Toussaint, Moncel, Nicholson, Reade, Gagnon, Aboud.

Marines—Thompson, Cleary Smith, Malenfant, Chown, Burrows, Ritchie, Patrick, Rutledge, Sargent, Johnson, Shannon, Adams, Pope, Rose, Simmons, Watt, Wake, Summery.

First Period.
1—Navy ..... Patterson (Crutchfield) ..... 6.15
2—Navy ..... Nicholson (Crutchfield) ..... 8.10
3—Navy ..... Gagnon (Owen) ..... 9.10
Penalties: None.

Second Period.
4—Navy ..... Crutchfield ..... 9.50
5—Navy ..... Crutchfield (Owen) ..... 11.25
6—Navy ..... Nicholson (Crutchfield, Owen) ..... 13.00
7—Marines ..... Smith (Burrows) ..... 14.45
Penalty: Smith.

Third Period.
8—Navy ..... Nicholson (Grant, Crutchfield) ..... 2.43
9—Navy ..... Gagnon ..... 11.45
Penalties: None.

The following are the line-ups for today's game:
Infantry—Milne, Descher, Graves, Keay, Farmer, Hellyer, Marriot, Darragh, Dion, Howard, Mulligan.
Artillery—Mann, Morrison, Keely, Holden, Hibbard, Fennel, Hebert, Henry, Farlinger.

Figuratively Speaking by R.D.P.

You sure missed a good ball game on Monday night, no fooling. Although dropping another close one, 37-35, the Redmen put on their best exhibition of the year, and for a time really caught the Oilers off balance. Smart work by Robinson and Mumford under the basket (in previous games the keys had been strictly opposition property) gave the students a head start, and helped make a more 'all-round' team out of them. For the first time so far they looked right at home amongst the best Montreal basketball.

The transformation was really startling. Coach Van Wagner places the blame for the defeat on the fact that the team clustered around centre floor on the offensive, instead of working the ball in and around the corners. He points out that the Oilers in the second half switched to a rushing type of game and partially broke up the Redmen's faulty style of attack. Mr. Van Wagner figures the team rose to their "playing peak" in the Trophy match. "On the whole, about as good as the boys could do, considering the amount of practice they've had," he said.

Which leads us to make the point that the McGill Senior team lost a playoff spot mainly because of a lack of regular, well-attended practices. But not that we can condemn them for it—did you ever notice that every player who made the team is in Medicine this year? They just didn't have the time to spare. And so it looks like we'll need a few more Theologs or Arsmen if we want a top-flight team next season. Or even the odd Engineer might help...

We see by the papers that the Senior A team from the University of British Columbia, last year's Canadian Champs, had a career this winter which paralleled somewhat the efforts of McGill. They, too, played in the City League, and also had a tough time of it, winning only two games in League play. An apathetic student attitude towards the team was another feature. However the similarities end right there. The Thunderbirds practised 5 times a week (or claimed so) and gained a playoff spot in true story-book fashion. Their erstwhile cheerleader exchanged his megaphone for a gym strip and won the deciding game by looping in a lone one in the final seconds of overtime.

But no such Deus Ex Machina unfortunately, appeared on the McGill front. In the first place we have no active cheerleader to rise thus from the bleachers to save the game, nor have we even an organized cheer gang to provide some encouragement to the team regulars. A yell-team was supposed to have been at the Clarkson hockey game, but failed to turn up, apparently due to non-interest again. Yet surely there should be a few dozen enthusiasts around the Campus, willing to loan their tonsils for three or four nights a month.

We would respectfully suggest to the newly-elected Athletic council that they make the re-formation of a Cheer Team one of their first jobs next October. And perhaps an incentive towards the composition of a few new yells would not be out of order.

Don't forget that Oilers meet Mount Royals this Saturday night in the Currie Gym in the first game of the best-of-five series to decide the City Title. If Coach Jimmy McCormick of Royals can get priorities on Ducey Bloomfield and Dick Kossy, at present in Army Camp at Borden, it should develop into a real hard-fought series. The Oilers had a tough break in losing star Busher Jackson just when it counts most, but nevertheless we'll still string along with the team's aggressive style of play and pick them to cop the series in four games...

necessarily be based not on hate but upon love—upon the "Good Neighbor" policy so successfully used in South America.

There is no need to create a "will to die for their country" in the men fighting for America's future; true Americans already have that will, and the few others would be as impervious to psychological attention as they are to the many heritages for which they already owe America.

Instill a feeling of active patriotism? By all means; but leave hatred for our enemies out of the picture. Hatred put us into this war; only overcoming that hatred will get us out of it and prevent yet another.

the scientific attitude, being an attitude of which the scientific is a small and comparatively unimportant expression.

The scientific attitude, the speaker said, does not include the desire to save the world. "It includes the desire to save nothing but appearances." "Science, ideally," Dr. Fulton said, "is the systematic theory which enables the mind to comprehend the total manifold of possible events in space and time as constituting a single order of nature." The attitude, he asserted, cannot lead one to distinguish evil from good except reference to "empirically confirmed hypothesis and false belief about matters of fact." The contention that ends may be scientifically determined must thus be dismissed, Dr. Fulton argued.

In expounding his second objection to the current belief under criticism, Dr. Fulton held that the larger attitude which is the power of light is the ethical attitude. This attitude, he argued, is not specifically scientific "though in a comparatively unimportant form it finds expression in the scientist's attitude." No human activity, including the scientific can be good without the ethical attitude, the speaker added.

There is a calendar hanging on the wall of my room, a coloured picture of Notre Dame Street, Montreal, as it was a century ago. The cobbled street runs straight back from the foreground toward the towers of Notre Dame Church. In the left foreground is an arched gateway, entrance to the Chateau de Ramezay, residence of Sir Charles Bagot, Governor, and beyond it, extending to the corner of the block, stands a long brick warehouse owned by James McGill, founder of the university named after him. Across the street a balustraded stone wall surrounds the gardens of the Court House, well back from the wide, paved sidewalk from which tall lamp posts rise at intervals. The tiled roofs of the houses are sunny, and the trees around the Court House are in full green leaf. And as I look at the picture, its fleecy clouds begin to drift across the sky, and the men and women on the sidewalks come to life. Carriage wheels rattle over the cobble stones, dogs bark and snap at the horses' heels, and little boys run across the street.

Outside the arched gateway, Sir Charles' coachman sits stiff and straight behind a handsome pair of chestnuts pawing the ground impatiently. Nearby, two young ladies stand on the sidewalk, twirling their parasols, shaded from the sun by twin poplars within the wrought iron fence of the residence. One of them is dressed in blue and the other in rusty red, both quite in the fashion with leg-o-mutton sleeves, tight-laced waists and skirts filled out with many petticoats, so long not even a dainty shoe is visible.

Across the street a habitant sits on the curb, his back against a lamp post, the tassel of his red woollen cap nodding as he dozes in the sun.

A sailor lolls against the corner of the Court House wall, sucking at a blackened clay pipe in drowsy meditation. Higher up the street, a heavy cart is turning the corner to
